END OF EPISODE TEN

Episode 10
THE END OF WAR

Michael rushes to the keeper of Gobo, the strongest elephant in the country. They tie his harness to a large hook in the wall, and the elephant pulls the whole side of the wall down. He rushes in, drags Stanley out through the opening in the wall, while soldiers with their spears guard the opening and keep the lions in the arena.

Stanley recovers, and the King gives a feast in his and Isolah's honor.

Manoric and Eric meet Garbo. He tells Garbo he knows of a subterranean passage that leads into the city. It is the only way of ingress, except up the trail and through the main gate.

They enter the passage from a river in boats, reach a stone staircase, climb up. Manoric presses the lever - a whole panel in the wall drops down, forming a gangway. They and Garbo's savages rush down into the banquet hall, and a battle takes place.

Manoric and Eric are killed. Garbo captures Isolah. The natives take Stanley and Michael, run up the gangway, pull the lever which raises the gangway into place as a panel. They rush down to the stone steps to their boats and row away.

Later in camp Garbo brings up two elephants, backs them up, selects Michael, telling Stanley his time will come next.

THE TUG OF WAR

Michael is tied hand and foot, then fastened to the harness of each elephant. At a signal from Gargo, they are to pull Michael apart in tug of war fashion, while Soolah and Stanley look on in horror.
